

Nina Vorontsova

My great grandmother was born in 1920 and passed away in 1982. She was the youngest child of a family of five and lived in a small countryside town in the South of Russia. She didn't have an opportunity to start up a career as she got married at the age 18. Her main occupations were housekeeping and looking after her children. Usually, she spent her days tidying up the house, cooking and doing laundry. As my grandmother told me, her mother was an incredibly intelligent woman and was really into crosswords. Additionally, she kept a small garden with different flowers and a couple of apple trees. She was a very strong woman, both physically and mentally, and managed the household fine, so that everything ran smoothly under her reign.

I was born in 2002. I have a younger sister Diana and live with my parents in St. Petersburg. My main occupation has been university for a long time now, and not that long ago I've picked up a job in the position of a tech support specialist. I spend my days either doing homework or working with occasional walks to have at least some fun in my lifetime. My hobbies are video games and binge watching korean series called dramas. I also enjoy playing piano, when I can spare some time for it. I've been to Egypt and Finland, which I liked a lot, even though I'm really scared of planes and had to suffer the flights to those countries and back. I would call my special ability to solve math equations easily. Currently, I'm writing an essay for my English class with a horror movie playing in the background.

My great granddaughter will be born sometime in 2120. Her nuclear family will include her parents and her twin sister. Her main occupation will be catching intergalactic criminals. Usually, she will have days full of space travelling, watching holographic movies and walking out with her AI-dog. She'll be into hockey and piano just like her great grandmother (me). She'll be visiting Saturn a lot, because her academic practice will be held there, and also she'll travel to Japan. Her special ability would be levitating, so she would be able to fly away from any problems that she'll have. One hundred years from today she'll be having a garden party due to her graduation from Space Police Academia.
